

CAMPAIGN FOR AMERICA'S FUTURE

Dear Jake,

There is a growing movement to make public colleges tuition free, investing in the future.

It is also time to cancel student debt that now burdens several generations of Americans -- debt which is also harming the US economy.

Over 44 million Americans are now struggling to pay student debt -- a total of $1.5 trillion. And that debt is bad for our whole society. Young people graduate unable to get married or buy a house because they have to meet their student debt payments. 173,000 people on Social Security are having their retirement checks garnished to pay what turned out to be a lifetime of student debt.

We are proud to be part of a new national coalition -- of students, educators, economists and everyday Americans -- demanding a national student debt jubilee to cancel the debt burden imposed upon several generations seeking an education. Will you join us?

Yes, we fight for tuition-free college for the future. But we will not turn our backs on the people now trapped by student debt. These people worked hard, played by the rules, and were victimized by predatory lenders -- and it's smothering the economy.

It doesn't have to be this way. Not that long ago, college was tuition-free for our parents and grandparents. Sign here if you agree that it's time to cancel student debt.

In the wake of World War II, the G.I. Bill sent a generation to college - for free. In the process, it unleashed post-war prosperity and redefined the American dream. We can do that again.

Studies have shown that cancelling existing student loan debt would save the average borrower aged 20-30 more than $4,000 per year, putting that money back into the economy and creating millions of jobs.
